

wherein a composition ratio of In in said first layer is changed continuously or intermittently in a direction toward the second layer side from the buffer layer side so that a composition of said first layer in a face brought into contact with said second layer becomes substantially equal to a composition of said second layer.

See the attached Appendix for the changes made to effect the above claim.